Chantel Loteryman's Story

I started to cook at a very young age, but soon did realise that the kitchen bug would give me a huge bite! That's why I decided to study Chef at The Polytechnic Hotel School under the tutor of Rudolf Imhoff. During this course I started working for Kalahari Sands Hotel and Casino, which gave me the opportunity to work with renowned Chef Conrad Gallagher.

Later I moved to Rosh Pinah where I headed the kitchen for Anglo America's guesthouse. Later I took the plunge and moved to CCM (Fedics) Catering Company. Returning to Windhoek I decided I wanted to start my own business. After one year back in Windhoek and working for a Bistro I decided to take the plunge in pursuing this dream. I am now a Freelance Chef and Catering for Hunting Farms, Lodges, Deli's, Functions, Corporate Functions, Ceremony's, Platters for Business meetings and give training in Kitchen Hygiene and Training. And the rest is history.

Since 2005 I am an active member of the Namibian Chefs Association (NCA); I was elected as the Vice President of the NCA in 2009. I have also been a judge for various cooking competitions and I am qualified as a Judge for the renown Boerewors Competitions hosted by Shoprite/Checkers group. I compiled the cook book What's Cooking and have been featured in local newspapers and the WACS magazine.

I have had the pleasure of cooking for some high profile people namely Actors and Politicians and would be keen on cooking for you some day.
